To make getting started even easier, some sets also include accompanying books with practical instructions. These make it easier for teachers and educators to immerse themselves in the world of music with their children – no prior musical knowledge required! The books offer simple, playful exercises and inspiring ideas to make collaborative music-making even more diverse.

But the music sets aren't just a valuable asset in daycare centers and schools: They also open up valuable opportunities when working with senior citizen groups or people with disabilities. Music engages all the senses, promotes motor skills, and creates a sense of community. The easy-to-play instruments allow everyone, regardless of their individual abilities, to actively participate in musical activities.
